Applications of proteins and enzymes often require them to be faster, more stable or more selective. Engineering these changes is getting easier with web-based tools that predict which changes are needed. This workshop will introduce these tools to non-specialists.